

Has Your Garage Door Been Repaired or Maintained Lately? It Might Be That Time!

Whenever you schedule a regular garage door maintenance and garage door repair, you will significantly extend the life of your garage door. If you hire an experienced garage door repairman to perform professional services, you will not have to pay for high-priced garage door replacement services.

Quick Guide to Garage Door Repair & Maintenance

How to Know When a Garage Door Repair is Necessary

When a garage door is in need of maintenance or repair, it can be a serious safety and security risk for you and your family. If you know how to recognize the signs that garage door repair is necessary, you can protect your family and home. One of the most common signs that you need garage door maintenance is if your garage door is making strange sounds when it opens or closes. If the garage door opens slower than usual, it may also need repair. If the door is jammed shut or stuck open, then you need garage door repair or garage door replacement as soon as possible.

How to Reduce the Need for Garage Door Repair

Performing regular garage door maintenance will reduce the risk of needing garage door repair. Wooden garage doors need a new garage door seal every two years. You should also protect your garage door from water. You can lubricate the garage door springs and rollers with a high lithium grease or 3 in 1 oil for garage doors. Check the automatic door safety sensors regularly to ensure they are working perfectly.

Hiring a Professional Garage Door Repairman is Crucial

You should never attempt to complete garage door repair on your own. You should hire a residential garage door specialist who is licensed and contracted to perform professional garage door repairs, garage door replacement, and garage door installation. You will encounter less problems if you hire a professional.

Our Wake Door Company Professionals Can Take Care of Your Next Garage Door Repair or Maintenance

If you think that your garage door might be in need of a repair soon, then call the experts at Prescott garage door repair. We will make sure that your garage door works properly and is not putting you or your family at risk!